Character Profile for Detective Inspector Alfonso Diego

Orphaned as a child and brooding and anti-social, Alfonso is not your average detective. Firstly, he looks like he is a villain!

Physically, he is rather short. His legs did not grow properly as a child and he finds it hard to run after criminals. Conversely, he can use this affliction to enable himself to hide in small spaces and spy on his suspects. At times, he has been known to use weapons that are not strictly legal in his fight against crime. He is stubborn and he sometimes operates outside of the law.

Many years of crime fighting have left him stressed and anxious – his solace from this is to smoke 80 cigarettes a day; his lungs are paying the price for this. Work for Alfonso is important and he often puts in 18 hour shifts. That said, his job is not his absolute passion – this is watching original western movies on his old black and white TV.
