

Dear Year Six,

What a beautiful week full of sunshine and soft spring weather.... I like a little bit of rain but it is getting a bit much now.

I'm no longer grateful to be in my winter clothing I am now fed up with cleaning up muddy footprints and drying out wet coats! Mr Tobin arranged for a tyre swing to be erected in our garden. It hangs proudly from our very large oak tree and the boys have been having lots of fun trying it out. The only problem is that underneath it is a mud patch. The garden has been dug out ready for a new studio to be built but the grass underneath the swing has been sown but not grown – yet! This means that my boys are constantly covered in mud, from top to bottom.

I hope you all enjoy the video that we will be sending to you of Mr Warrener delivering the first instalment of his crime writing lesson. It was fun to put together although I think I need a little more videoing practise – I don't think either of us will be receiving a Bafta anytime soon.

I couldn't let this term go by without some form of performance. Soon, you will be receiving a PowerPoint about this year's class performance. We will be writing and performing our own poem based upon your experiences of Nabb. The PowerPoint explains everything you need to know and I hope you will all be as excited as I am to get involved.

This week's topic is based upon the magic of kindness, of all the personality traits people can show, kindness is the most important. This week why not think about how you can show random acts of kindness to your family. Why not tidy the living room without being nagged or empty the dishwasher? You'll be surprised how grateful and happy it makes mum/dad or your siblings when you show a little kindness – I know what a difference it makes in my house when the boys tidy their room and remember to put their dirty clothes in the laundry basket. I know from experience how kind my class can be.

Remember to send your "Good Bye to Nabb" forms back to me as soon as you have completed them.

Keep safe and happy

Mrs Tobin
