Dear Parents,

Our topic after half term will be the Great Fire of London. On Wednesday 9 November we have invited the Real History Alive team in to start the topic off with a bang! The children will enjoy a show featuring Daisy the time traveller and Samuel Pepys, the famous 17th century diarist, as they strive to discover the origins of the Great Fire and how the disaster shaped London as it is today.

After the show the children will enjoy interactive workshops which include:

- * 17th Century dance workshop.
- * Fire, fire! Workshop.
- * Plague doctor workshop.

The Real History Alive team invite the children to come dressed as 17th century villagers so feel free to send your child in costume! However, we understand that this is not always possible and we will be making things in class to ensure that all the children have something to wear on the day.

The team come highly recommended and have visited before; the day is guaranteed to be both educational and great fun for the children.

The cost of the event is £13.50 which is payable on ParentPay.

Thanks in advance,

Miss Wilson and Miss Todd.
